

At Power Down Under, we are passionate about cultivating a workplace culture that champions diversity and inclusion. As part of this commitment, we're proud to actively engage with the indigenous workforce, recognising the unique talents and perspectives they bring to the table.

Our dedication extends beyond workforce inclusion—we're also focused on empowering indigenous-owned businesses by prioritising procurement from these communities for both materials and labour.

To bring this vision to life, we're excited to announce our partnership with Moombaki PCB Pty Ltd, an indigenous-owned company that shares our values and commitment to opening doors for indigenous talent through their labour hire services.

This partnership marks a significant step in strengthening indigenous representation within our workforce.

In addition to labour hire, Power Down Under is thrilled to collaborate with MM Electrical and the Clontarf Foundation. MM Electrical, another proud indigenous-owned business, will provide top-tier materials for our projects, while the Clontarf Foundation's involvement ensures a responsible, sustainable supply chain that benefits indigenous communities.

Through these strategic alliances, Power Down Under is not only fostering a diverse and talented workforce but also supporting the growth of indigenous businesses, driving economic empowerment, and paving the way for a more inclusive and sustainable future for everyone involved.

Sincerely,

Sam Green
